

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Think about doing something you enjoy to de-stress!

Learning Outcome

Describe ways of solving problems and getting things done in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How do you relax at home?
- What do you do when you are more stressed out than usual?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about domestic activities.
- I can talk about solving problems.
- I can respond to difficult questions and encourage agreement.

Let's Explore!

Visualize* baking in a warm kitchen!

* When you "visualize" you try to really see yourself in a situation.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Stress can overtake your life and leave you feeling very helpless. Haven't you wondered how to relieve that stress at home? You have to find a way to cope or it can be overwhelming. Doctors recommend finding an activity that you love doing, and make it an enjoyable experience. One such example might be baking. Can't you feel yourself relaxing already? Baking is a great way to help you de-stress. Have your spouse, children, or a friend help you. It could make it a more engaging experience. You could also get a group of friends to come over after. Get them to bring their own baked goodies for a nice tea party. Visualize it! If you have children and prefer baking alone, have your spouse take the children to the movies. Now, the kitchen is yours! Can't you just imagine yourself stirring, adding, folding, and pouring in a warm kitchen? Get your tools ready. Have the fresh ingredients all arranged nicely on the kitchen counter. Don't you think having your favourite song play in the background while you mix the ingredients together would be soothing? Mmmm. Smell the aroma of your freshly baked masterpiece as you take it out of the oven. Don't you feel better already?

So, find something you love doing and do it, even if it's something simple like baking. Wouldn't you agree it's the best way to fight stress?

Let's Practice!

Wouldn't you agree ... ?

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Work Bank

- Doesn't he
- Do you
- Can't you
- Don't you think
- Don't you feel
- Haven't you wondered

1. _____ how to relieve that stress at home?
2. _____ just imagine yourself stirring, adding, folding, and pouring in a warm kitchen?
3. _____ having your favorite song play in the background while you mix your ingredients would be soothing?
4. _____ better already?

Let's Practice!

Giving advice.

Instructions: Circle the correct word to complete the sentence.

1. Baking is a great way to help you _____.
(de-stress/ cook/ stress)
2. _____ your spouse, children, or a friend help you. It could make it a more engaging experience.
(Tell/ Bring/ Have)
3. You could also get a group of friends _____ over after.
(come/ to come/ came)
4. Get them _____ their own baked goodies for a nice tea party.
(bring/ to bring/ brought)

Extension Activity

Describe an activity you can do at home to help you de-stress.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Read the text again.
- Think of another activity someone could do at home to de-stress.
- Write a description of that activity that could make someone want to try it.
- Use words for domestic activities.
- Explain how this activity can help solve the stress problem.
- Encourage agreement.
- Read your text aloud to a partner.
- Discuss your idea with them.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write a text on how to de-stress doing a domestic activity.

☐ ☐

I talk about solving the problem.

☐ ☐

I use vocabulary for domestic activities.

☐ ☐

I use questions to encourage agreement.

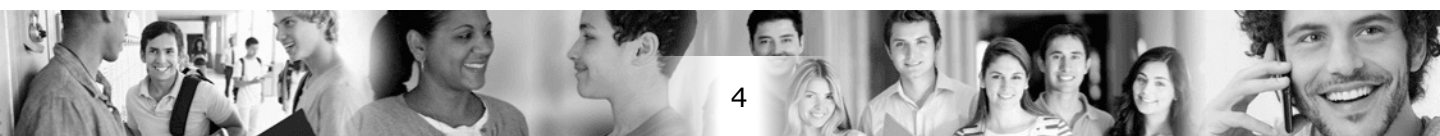

☐ ☐

I share my idea with a partner and discuss it.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to de-stress (verb): to liberate from stress
e.g. Baking is a great way to help you de-stress.
- overwhelming (adjective): to overpower or overcome in mind or feeling e.g. You have to find a way to cope or it can be overwhelming.
- to overtake (verb): to happen suddenly and unexpectedly e.g. Stress can overtake your life and leave you feeling very helpless.
- spouse (noun): husband or wife
e.g. Have your spouse take the children to the movies.
- to recommend (verb): to give advice
e.g. Doctors recommend finding an activity that you love doing, and make it an enjoyable experience.
- counter (noun): flat surface for the preparation of food in a kitchen e.g. Have the fresh ingredients all arranged nicely on the kitchen counter.
- to fold (verb): to bend
e.g. Can't you just imagine yourself stirring, adding, folding, and pouring in a warm kitchen?
- aroma (noun): pleasant odor
e.g. Smell the aroma of your freshly baked masterpiece as you take it out of the oven.
- masterpiece (noun): a person's greatest piece of work
e.g. Smell the aroma of your freshly baked masterpiece as you take it out of the oven.
- background (noun): things at the back or rear
e.g. Don't you think having your favourite song play in the background while you mix the ingredients together would be soothing?

Learning Points

The Causative - Get/Have

You use a causative verb when you want to talk about something that someone else did for you or for another person. It means that the subject caused the action to happen, but didn't do it themselves.

You use the causative verbs get/have when you want to make it clear that the subject paid, asked, or persuaded the other person to do something.

For example:

You could also get a group of friends to come over after.

In this sentence, someone asks or persuades a group of friends to come over.

The structure of the causative is:

Subject + have + object + verb

You can have your spouse take the children to the movies.

or

Subject + get + object + infinitive

Get them to bring their own baked goodies for a nice tea party.

Sometimes, you use get when you want to convey the feeling that you need to convince someone to do something. Have is a little more neutral.

Examples:

- I have problems getting my roommates to do chores around the house.
- It's a great way to have your roommates participate in the chores.
- She told me that I should get you to give me some advice.
- First off you need to have them do their own laundry.
- Perhaps you could get a teenager in the neighborhood to mow the lawn.

Learning Points

Negative Questions To Encourage Agreement

Negative questions have a different meaning than regular questions.

A negative question can be used to ask for confirmation of something you believe to be true.

- Can't you feel yourself relaxing already?
- (= I think you can feel yourself relaxing.)

With this type of question, you anticipate that the listener will agree with you and answer 'yes'.

Examples:

- Wouldn't you agree it's the best way to fight stress?
- Don't you think your favourite song playing in the background while you mix the ingredients together would be soothing?
- Can't you just imagine yourself stirring, adding, folding, and pouring in a warm kitchen?
- Haven't you wondered how to relieve that stress at home?

