

Instructor: ..... Date: .....

Learner: ..... Regional Branch: .....

Program: ..... Center: .....

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Everyone hates housework, don't they?

Learning Outcome

Describe ways of solving problems and getting things done in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How often do you do the housework or share the housework?
- How often do you try to get out of it?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about domestic activities.
- I can talk about solving problems.
- I can respond to difficult questions and encourage agreement.

Let's Explore!

Sally advises Maria to use a chore wheel*.

* A "chore wheel" is two circles that turn, one with names, the other with household tasks on it. Turn the wheel to rotate names and chores.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Sally: Hello?

Maria: Is this Sally?

Sally: Yes ...

Maria: This is Maria. I'm Vanessa's co-worker. She told me that I should get you to give me some advice.

Sally: Sure, what can I do for you?

Maria: I live with two other people. I have problems getting my roommates to do chores around the house. I do all the work. Don't you think it's a bit unfair?

Sally: It's definitely not fair. Wouldn't you agree that you need to divide all the chores equally between the three of you?

Maria: Yes, you're right. I want to do that, but I am scared to ask them. Is there an easier way?

Sally: Yes. Make a chore wheel. It's a great way to have your roommates participate in the chores. That would help, don't you think?

Maria: That's a wonderful idea! My friend put one together at college and it was very effective.

Sally: Isn't it time you took a break and let your roommates help you?

Maria: Yes, I'm so tired of doing all the laundry and cleaning up in the house. There are other chores like mowing the lawn and dusting that also need to get done.

Sally: Wow! First off you need to have them do their own laundry. Perhaps you could get a teenager in the neighborhood to mow the lawn. The dusting you can share. Don't you feel better now that you can have your friends' help?

Maria: Yes, I do. Thanks Sally for everything!

Sally: Anytime.

Let's Practice!

I need advice ...

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Correct the mistake. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Sure, what could I do for you?

---

2. I have problems get my roommates to do chores around the house.

---

3. Wouldn't you agreed that you need to divide all the chores equally between the three of you?

---

4. First off you need to having them do their own laundry.

---

5. Perhaps you could getting a teenager in the neighborhood to mow the lawn.

---

Let's Practice!

Don't you think ...?

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentences.

1. It's / ? / a / Don't / bit / you / unfair / think

---

2. took / you / roommates / your / you / break / it / and / time / ? / Isn't / let / a / help

---

3. you / feel / better / have / you / your / help / ? / Don't / can / that / now / friends'

---

4. but / that, / to / do / I / ask / I / them / . / to / scared / am / want

---

5. equally / divide / you / all / the / that / three / agree / to / the / ? / chores / you / between / of / need / Wouldn't / you

---

Extension Activity

Make a Chore Wheel.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- For fun, make a chore wheel for the people in your family or for you and your friends.
- Find out online how to make the chore wheel.
- Make one up dividing up household chores, if it's for your family.
- If it's for friends, pretend you are all living together in a house and sharing household tasks.
- Don't forget to be fair when you divide everything up!
- Bring your wheel to class and show a partner.
- Discuss why you divided the tasks the way you did.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I find out how to make a chore wheel.

☐
☐

I use vocabulary for domestic activities on it.

☐
☐

I discuss why I divided the chores that way with a partner.

☐
☐

Target Words

- to dust (verb): to wipe the dust
e.g. There are other chores like mowing the lawn and dusting that also need to get done.
- to clean up (verb): the process of cleaning or organizing
e.g. I'm so tired of doing all the laundry and cleaning up in the house.
- to mow the lawn (expression): to cut the grass
e.g. There are other chores like mowing the lawn.
- chore (noun): work around a house
e.g. Wouldn't you agree that you need to divide all the chores equally between the three of you?
- effective (adjective): able to accomplish a purpose
e.g. My friend put a chore wheel together at college and it was very effective.
- laundry (noun): wash the clothes
e.g. I'm so tired of doing all the laundry and cleaning up in the house.
- to put together (verb): to make
e.g. My friend put a chore wheel together at college and it was very effective.

Learning Points

The Causative - Get/Have

The verbs get/have are called causative verbs when they talk about an action that another person did for you or did for another person. The subject of the sentence caused the action, but it is not responsible for doing the action.

You use the causative verbs get/have when you want to make it clear that someone or something asked, paid or convinced another person to do something.

For example:

Perhaps you could get a teenager in the neighborhood to mow the lawn.

In this sentence you pay, ask or persuade a teenager to mow the lawn.

The structure of the causative is:

Subject + have + object + verb

You need to have them do their own laundry.

or

Subject + get + object + infinitive

You get your roommates to participate in chores.

Sometimes, you use get when you want to convey the feeling that you need to convince someone to do something. Have is a little more neutral.

Examples:

- I have problems getting my roommates to do chores around the house.
- It's a great way to have your roommates participate in the chores.
- She told me that I should get you to give me some advice.
- First off you need to have them do their own laundry.
- Perhaps you could get a teenager in the neighborhood to mow the lawn.

Learning Points

Negative Questions To Encourage Agreement

Negative questions have a different meaning than regular questions.

You can use negative questions to confirm something you think is true, but you are not sure.

- Don't you think it's a bit unfair?
- (= I think it's a bit unfair.)

With this type of question, you anticipate that the listener will agree with you and answer 'yes'.

Sometimes, you can add the question at the end of the statement. This is more casual.

For example:

That would help, don't you think?

Examples:

- Wouldn't you agree that you need to divide all the chores equally between the three of you?
- Isn't it time you took a break and let your roommates help you?
- That would help, don't you think?
- Don't you feel better now that you can have your friends' help?

