

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

With lots of people, the work gets done quickly!

Learning Outcome

Describe ways of solving problems and getting things done in social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How often do people in your circle of friends and family work together to get things done quickly?
- How often is this type of thing done for your community - at a community center or church?

Can Do Statements

- I can explain how to do things in a spoken way.
- I can talk about solving problems.
- I can ask for clarification and encourage agreement.

Let's Explore!

It's cleaning day!

* "Cleaning day" is a day set aside for heavy, full house/apartment cleaning.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Wouldn't you like to come home to a clean house every day? It's refreshing and relaxing especially after a hard day's work. Here are some ways you can maintain a clean house. You shouldn't try to do all the chores yourself. I recommend dividing the chores equally. Have your spouse or housemates clean up after themselves. Remind them when they were supposed to do it, and forgot. You're weren't going to do it for them, were you? They'll think you were supposed to do it. You do not want the housework to become overwhelming again, do you?

Schedule a major cleaning day into your calendar when everyone is supposed help out and do it properly. Have someone remind everyone. Isn't that how things get done? If you were going to make this day easier, you could make it entertaining. What was going to be a terrible day will in fact not be. Get everyone to choose their favorite music to play, and order pizza for lunch. Isn't it better to make things fun rather than tedious?

Have everyone decide together what to clean. That will prevent anything from being missed. If something needs a professional, then no one is supposed to touch it. Isn't it better to bring an expert in to make things better? Ah, cleaning day. Let's make the day you were going to hate a fun day. Maybe after this you won't have to get everyone to do it again.

Let's Practice!

Would you like to ... ?

Instructions: Read the sentences. Select the correct answer. Practice saying the complete sentences aloud with your partner. Correct each other.

1. _____ to come home to a clean home every day?
(Would you like/ Wouldn't you like)
2. You shouldn't try to do all the chores yourself, especially if you live with other people,

(should you?/ shouldn't you)
3. You're weren't going to do it for them, _____
(were you?/ weren't you?)
4. You do not want the housework to become overwhelming again, _____
(do you?/ don't you?)
5. _____ how things get done?
(Is that/ Isn't that)
6. _____ better to make things fun rather than tedious?
(Is it / Isn't)

Let's Practice!

Let's get cleaning!

Instructions: Proofread the sentences below and circle the mistakes you find. Correct the sentences.

1. Have your spouse or housemates cleaning up after themselves

2. Have someone reminded everyone.

3. Gets everyone to choose their favorite music to play, and order pizza for lunch.

4. Have everyone deciding together what to clean

5. Maybe after this you won't have to got everyone to do it again.

Extension Activity

Plan a house cleanup party.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- You and two of your friends are moving into a house together.
- The place needs to be cleaned so you have decided to invite people over to help you with your cleaning day.
- Brainstorm a list of things that need to be done, then write up a fun 'asking for your help' invitation to other friends.
- Use clarification questions to encourage agreement.
- Offer food and music as incentives.
- Bring your invitation to class and show a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write an invitation to have people help me clean up my new house or apartment.

☐ ☐

I ask for help.

☐ ☐

I use clarification questions to encourage agreement.

☐ ☐

I offer food and music as incentives.

☐ ☐

I share my invitation with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to recommend (verb): to give an advice
e.g. I recommend dividing the chores equally.
- spouse (noun): husband or wife e.g. Have your spouse or housemates clean up after themselves.
- overwhelming (adjective): very large e.g. You do not want the housework to become overwhelming again do you?
- properly (adjective): most suitable e.g. Schedule a major cleaning day into your calendar when everyone is supposed to help out and do it properly.
- to help out (verb): to provide what is necessary to accomplish a task e.g. Everyone is supposed to help out and do it properly.
- tedious (adjective): long and tiresome
e.g. Isn't it better to make things fun rather than tedious?
- entertaining (adjective): fun, amusing
e.g. You could make it entertaining.
- to maintain (verb): to keep e.g. Here are some ways you can maintain a clean house.

Learning Points

The Causative - get/have

You use a causative verb when you want to talk about something that someone else did for you or for another person. It means that the subject caused the action to happen, but didn't do it themselves.

You use the causative verbs get/have when you want to make it clear that the subject paid, asked, or persuaded the other person to do something.

For example:

Have your spouse or housemates clean up after themselves.

In this sentence you ask or persuade your spouse to clean up after themselves.

The structure of the causative is:

Subject + have + object + verb

Have someone remind everyone.

or

Subject + get + object + infinitive

Get everyone to choose their favorite music to play.

Sometimes, you use get when you want to convey the feeling that you need to convince someone to do something. Have is a little more neutral.

Examples:

- Have everyone decide together what to clean.
- Get everyone to choose their favorite music to play, and order pizza for lunch.
- Maybe after this you won't have to get everyone to do it again.
- Have your spouse or housemates clean up after themselves.
- Have someone remind everyone.

Learning Points

Explaining How Things Were Done

You use be supposed to and was going to to explain how things were done.

You use the structure be supposed to when you want to talk about expectations, obligations or arrangements. You can use this structure using the Past tense to talk about things that you were obligated to do, but didn't or couldn't do.

The structure is:

Subject + To be + supposed to + verb

Another thing we were all supposed to be doing to help the environment was not litter.

*Pronunciation tip:

When you say be supposed to, you link the /d/ and /t/ sounds together.

Like this: Be suppose_to

You use the structure was going to when you want to talk about things that you had planned or intended to do.

The structure is:

was/were + going to + verb

You were going to spend less time driving and more time walking.

Examples:

- We were supposed to recycle.
- You were supposed to take all of your recyclables out of the weekly trash, too!
- Obviously we have not been doing what we were supposed to be doing or there wouldn't be a crisis!
- You were going to spend less time driving and more time walking.

